George Washington Lives To-day: A Prayer Fulfilled.

One hundred and thirty-one years ago to-day George Washington was inaugurated as President of the United tion and a pathos of detail exceeded States for his first term. That great man, when his solemn part in the inauguration was in Milwaukee soon after the hideous completed, called out to the people in event, and the second from a speech a full, strong voice :

"Long live George Washington, November 11, 1919: President of the United States!"

The Father of His Country survived, in the flesh, this historical oceasion by half a score of years, but for a century and a third his wisdom. his prevision, his courage, his caution have endured to inspire and to guide his fellow countrymen in the direction of their public affairs.

Through the mutations and chances of unprecedented grawth, through years in which progress in the application to human purposes of natural laws produced social and economic revolutions with bewildering frequency, the nation to whose call GEORGE WASHINGTON responded in 1789, as he had responded in 1775, has beld close to the chart of statesmanship he drafted for it.

Thus the hope and prayer of Chancellor LIVINGSTON that GEORGE WASHingron, President of the United States, should live long has been granted, for he lives to-day in his works, whose supreme value and unimpaired strength have once more been demonstrated in this the one bundred and forty-fourth year of American Independence.

The Republic continues the free and independent nation George Washing-Ton would have it, and his simple, wise and true teachings, animating a people devoted to freedom, have stripped internationalism of its clock of false pretence.

Lloyd George's Clearer Skies.

Those who have difficulty in persuading themselves that the British Empire is not bankrupt because the European Continent is partly in economic chaos and largely in financial difficulties should reflect upon the trade figures for Canada for the year ended March 31, 1920. Our northern neighbor's foreign trade in that period was $2,351,174,886, an annual increase of $165,980,266.

When it is remembered that British capital has a large investment in Canada and that profits from Canadian trade accrue to such capital, while necessary products flow copiously from the Dominion to the United Kingdom, it helps to overcome the thought that the British Empire consists only of a few small islands whose chief asset is a boastful navy which bosses the ocean. This delusion will be further dispelled on recalling that besides the great and powerful Dominion to our north the British Empire comprises an oil bearing section of South America, the whole of the Australian continent and New Zealand, other Islands in the Pacific, with large production of cereals, wool and spelter; India
